From the Ashes

Throughout history there is told the legend of the rare and remarkable PHOENIX, a CRIMSON and GOLD bird that lived 500 years. It was sleek, swift and strong- the most marvelous bird ever created by human imagination. At the end of its life, with death approaching, it built a nest in an OAK TREE and was consumed by flames ignited by the sun. From the Ashes emerged the next Phoenix- reborn and renewed, with strength forged in FIRE.

A dark, gloomy shadow of ash and smoke had been cast on the campus but as the clouds cleared, each sparkling particle revealed much more than had appeared to have been left behind because individuals emerged and the campus was revived with the beginning of Student Life.

During the football game half time, all of the court members were lined up on the field. Butterflies filled their stomachs due to the nervous anticipation of the king and queen crowning.

The  $\Phi M$  representatives tried to chill their nerves with a few words of laughter before they made their appearance on the field.

The crowns were presented to the new queen, Lisa Fort of A $\Omega$ I $\Gamma$  and king, Chad Heinicke of  $\Pi K \Phi$ , who was not pictured due to prior engagements. The crown was accepted on his behalf by Ryan Cunningham.

Homecoming Court of Royalty

By Ashley C. Regan

Perhaps the most exciting events in Homecoming Week are the football game and the crowning of the Homecoming king and queen. These events are often the last of the week and serve to pull everything together in a few loud hours of cheering for the football team and homecoming court alike. The students are given a chance to show their football skills and great sense of loyalty and also to present the two students that they feel best exemplify this loyalty. These two are carefully chosen by a vote and spend the next year representing the school.

This year, the homecoming king was Chad Heinicke of Pi Kappa Phi who was unable to accept the award on the day it was given because he was away for a soccer tournament. Chad was crowned at College Coffee the following Tuesday. Alpha Omicron Pi's Lisa Fort received the title of homecoming queen. The voting for this event was the highest ever and the students were very happy with the turn out. At the announcement of the winners, the stands went wild with cheering and clapping. It was quite a successful vote.

Homecoming week was a very exciting time filled with events, games and laughter. The students all pulled together and created a widely diverse group of people who all shared one common trait; a love for the school. On the final day of events, the students crowded together in the stadium to show this love to each other and to the challenging university. They did this with pride and the students truly did "Light the Flame."

Football and a

Celebration

It began on a cool, sunny morning at College Coffee. Among the students in their usual school day garb existed a mob of girls with pig tails, slippers, and pajamas traveling in a line singing. A group of Disney characters, various Olympians and even the Secret Service complete with Bill Clinton and Monica Lewinsky frolicked about the fountain. It was October 31, the first day of Homecoming week, and a costume contest was the first of many competitions.

Light the Flame was the theme of this week of coming together of students and alumni alike. The SGA, which was responsible for planning the events, had a very diverse crowd participate in the events to make Homecoming an exciting week. Other events that were judged in the competition included a quiz bowl and a float competition.

On Thursday night, students flocked to the construction site of Rhodes Stadium to take part in a pep rally and to witness a spectacular array of fireworks. Saturday morning, Haggard Avenue was blocked off from traffic for an hour, so that the Homecoming parade could pass through. In addition to many colorful floats, vans, cars, and motorcyclists showed their school spirit and loyalty with banners and uplifting phrases painted on their windows.

Overall, the week was a great success and everyone who had a chance to participate in the events or who witnessed them saw a strong sense of togetherness and loyalty.

Members of ΠΚΦ dressed up for the costume contest. They were the Secret Service men complete with Bill Clinton, Al Gore, and Monica Lewinsky. Everyone was sure to be stunned by Josh Sype's dazzling beauty.

Around the fountain, doughnut eaters gathered to be the first to get their dangling round pastry off the string. This member of ΑΖΔ was cheered on by her sisters as she took her first delightful bite.

Female MVP, Elise Hewett was congratulated by Tait Arend for her hard work and participation in this year's fall Rectober Sportsfest. Joe Azzato was named the male MVP.

The Destroyers, G-Bums, Love Shack, and J-Crew all combined to make the Danieley Area teams and together were able to grasp first place after competing against every other area on campus.

Intramural Festivals of Recreation

By Katie Sherman

With a spirit all their own, Campus Recreation represented everything Elon stands for. The teamwork necessary to plan all of the extracurricular activities involved intense focus by all CR members. This organization is divided into seven programmatic areas including aerobics, intramurals, and scheduling. Intramurals promoted involvement in semi-competitive teams including roller hockey, field hockey, men's and women's rugby, horseback riding, and swimming. The facility team managed the fitness center and the building, meticulously, in order to ensure a pleasant and safe atmosphere. The Intramurals team does immense amounts of work by planning, staging, working, and officiating all of the intramural games throughout the school year and gave students a chance to learn that "it's not who wins, its how you play the game." Such important lessons were also taught by Elon's very own Outdoors team. This section planned trips for other organizations, provided excursions for all interested students, and taught the student body to push themselves to the limits. Finally, the Special Programs team has grown in the last few years and has utilized power in numbers. This team created every CR event and did an amazing job of building school spirit. Through all of their efforts, Campus Recreation gave the entire population a sense of belonging and comaraderie.

As Cara Wise and Shannon Carpenter came to the podium to announce the first place winners, the crowd waited silently.

Tradition Mascots: the Rivalry

By Rebecca Brewer

The name of the new mascot emerged from the egg last May but the Phoenix had remained unseen.

The Fighting Christian has been a long time tradition of Elon. The announcement of a new mascot in May of last year was not as welcome as the administration had hoped. The Fighting Christian, commonly referred to as 'Mr. E,' held a special place in many people's hearts. He bridged the gap between the school and what was left of its affiliation with the church, while inviting a sense of unity between students and alumni. In some cases, both students and alumni had mixed emotions during this transition and often times bitter attitudes toward the Athletics Department. Undoubtedly, they would benefit from this change but it was also designed to promote a positive image for the school, which could not have been put into better words than Lambert's own." The elegant and brilliant Phoenix was described by ancient scholars as sleek, swift, and one-of-a-kind. I can think of no better description for Elon's outstanding athletics programs." Although the Fighting Christian has always held a history with the college, it is believed by some, that the Phoenix commemorates that history and has helped emerge a stronger institution. Even through all of this, it was still inevitable that despite Elon's new mascot and the general acceptance of it, the upperclassmen will always remain Fighting Christians at heart.

The bird ran out with the football team during half time at the Homecoming football game. Since it was the debut of the Phoenix, the crowd cheered and almost immediately hoisted him off of his feet, into the hands of his new family.

During the Homecoming parade, an alumni expressed his dissatisfaction with the new mascot as he rode by in his mini-van that read "Phoenix tastes like chicken."

The student body remembers the mascot that set the tone for the college and carries many fond memories, "Mr. E."

Found doing their duties at the football game, the pep band is responsible for keeping school spirit alive before and during the game. This season was their last as they will give way to the return of a marching band.

Performance Raising the Curtain

By Rebecca Brewer

On opening night, right before the curtain rises, cast and crew wait in darkness for the first line of the first scene. Each one is faced with overwhelming emotions: the nervousness that things won't go well, the excitement of the culmination of months' work, and an eagerness for the lights to go up.

Over fall, winter, and spring semesters, at least five major productions were cast, rehearsed, and performed. Through these performances, students majoring in the arts are given a chance to gain the education necessary to become successful in their future careers. Whether their talent lay in movement, voice, or acting, students were sure to find their niche in the departments of dance, theatre, and musical theatre, but no musical would be complete without the orchestra.

The Music Department is small but demands a presence from the audience. From their concert performances to football games, the dedicated students were able to display their many talents. Dressed in maroon and white shirts, the pep band played a vital role in boosting school spirit before and during games. The concert band successfully proved themselves through various performances and musical gallas.

Despite the seemingly declining interest in the arts, students demonstrated the importance of practice and rehearsal. These many nights spent working together truly resulted in a work of art.

It Begins On Campus at Night

By Katie Sherman

Not even large enough to be a city, the town of Elon College still knows how to party. From 'pre-night' to 'late-night,' college students can be seen

Running late into the night, the holiday dance was a time for friends and memories filled with laughter and gossip.

walking the streets. Dorm get-togethers usually start the night off right for the freshmen, while the bars open the doors to all of the 'of-age' adults. Yet, no matter the age of the student trying to find a good time, there is always a place to go. The majority of students spark the weekend on Thursday and continue until Sunday although there are still noticeable Tuesday night party-animals who need a break from the academia of daytime. As one of two dancing arenas on campus, West End is often crowded with familiar faces. The infamous 'Lighthouse' is a fine establishment located in the Southwestern region of campus. For the community that is more comfortable with familiarity, Greek life is important. On-campus or off, fraternity socials are always an option.

No matter your taste or what your idea of fun when the sun goes down, there are a variety of opportunities to make new friends and have a good time.

Kevin Jones, Josh Rowan, and company stood around to discuss the hot events happening on campus later that night.

Seniors Standing Out!

Senior and SGA President John Gardner hangin' around in Moseley, the central hub for many student organizations on campus.

Senior and SGA President John Gardner tells us a little about his experience at Elon and how it has influenced his plans for the future.

Q: Has your position as SGA President enhanced your experience at Elon?

A: Serving the students of Elon as the SGA president has definitely enhanced my experience at Elon. Through this office, I was in the position to help students on a day to day basis, work with administration, and help to maintain and enhance our community administration. Over the past few years, I have had the unique opportunity to watch Elon grow and help shape the future of the school.

Q: What are your plans after graduation?

A: I plan to begin a career in politics. I have always been interested in politics, but after being an intern in Washington this past summer, I came to the conclusion that the political arena was where I wanted to be. I am unsure of where my future will take me, but look forward to staying involved with Elon in some way.

In Memory of Megan Tripp

Megan and friend Lauren Orlen on Sydney Harbor Cruise.

I'm Free

*Don't grieve for me, for now I'm free,
I'm following the path God laid for me,
I took his hand when I heard Him call,
I turned my back and left it all.*

*I could not stay another day
To laugh, to love, to work or play.
Tasks left undone must stay that way,
I found that peace at the close of the day.*

*If my parting has left a void,
Then fill it with remembered joy,
A friendship shared, a laugh, a kiss
Oh yes, these things I too will miss.*

*Be not burdened with times of sorrow,
I wish you the sunshine of tomorrow.
My life's been full, I savored much.
Good friends, good times, a loved one's touch.*

*Perhaps my time seemed all too brief,
Don't lengthen it now with undue grief.
Lift up your heart and share with me,
God wanted me now, He set me free.*

In Memory of Dr. R.D. Rao

*K*nown for his colorful lectures and his sense of humor, Rao was renowned throughout the Elon community for his interest in the lives of his students. Nancy Harris, a colleague and close friend, remembers that he loved to socialize informally with everyone, students and faculty alike.

"He just had a way about him and he had a great sense of humor," remembers Harris. "He played a large role in why our Biology Department is so family oriented. He set the tone that we were a family-students and faculty. And he loved to spend time with students," Harris says.

While Rao liked to have fun, he was serious about the business of learning, too, says fellow department member Robert Vick.

"You had to tow the rope in his class; you didn't come in late to his class, or talk without being asked." But in his heart, Rao was a teacher who genuinely enjoyed his students. "He was always so interested in his students and he loved to do things with them." Vick remembers that Rao would often accompany members of the Elon football team to Zack's downtown Burlington for hot dogs.

"The department just won't be the same without him," says Vick. "He's been such a constant around here."

Down Under With Peter Farmer

G'Day Mate!

Professor Peter Farmer greets his students using native Australian terms. This popular leisure/sport management professor has been teaching at Elon since 1996. Farmer started out as a part-time professor at Elon. After a short time, Farmer left Elon to teach at the University of Western Sidney. He came back to teach at Elon a few years later.

This busy professor has led a full life. Farmer was born in Sydney and spent 19 years of his life in Australia before moving to the United States. He was the envy of all his friends when he received an athletic scholarship to the University of Texas at El Paso. While in Texas, Farmer participated in hammer throwing and was the number 2 junior in the world. He later graduated with a degree in health and physical education.

Farmer was a national coach in Mexico. In addition, he went to France to work as an administrator. Farmer went on to teach elementary school for over 4 years. After teaching, he reported sports for KDBC TV in El Paso. Despite his busy schedule, Farmer still had time to train and compete in the 1976 and 1980 Olympics. He later served as a national coach in Australia.

After many accomplishments, Farmer went back to school to earn an MBA at the University of Mexico. He later earned a Ph.D from Tulane University where he was also a department chair. After Farmer came back to America, he taught at Guilford College. He eventually went back to Australia before finally settling in at Elon.

When asked about his teaching, Farmer mentioned that he enjoys being able to relate his eclectic background to his students. He also "hasn't met someone he doesn't like." Being able to help design and create the leisure/sport management program is another thing he likes about Elon.

Farmer was lucky to be selected to run with the torch before the 2000 Olympic Games. In January 2001, Farmer will be heading back to Australia. This time, he will be taking a group of Elon students on a study-abroad trip.

“Elon: Past Present and Future”

*W*hen you think of Elon, what do you usually think about? Some think of football games or parties, others think of the beautiful campus and the outstanding professors. Most people do not consider that the ground Elon originally stood on, 87 acres purchased at $281, was once a majestic grove of oak trees. Elon translated into Hebrew means “oak,” but what actually stood in this grove? The college originally consisted of just one building, Old Main, and one dormitory, East. Up until the addition of Koury Athletic Center and construction of the Moseley Student Center, Elon’s campus was primarily located south of Haggard Avenue, something most current students could not even fathom. During Winter Term 2001 students learned about Elon’s history and heritage during “Elon”: Past, Present, and Future”, taught by President Emeritus, Dr. J. Earl Danieleley. Students were also in for a special treat when Dr. Gerald Francis, provost and vice president, and Dr. Leo Lambert Elon’s president, spoke to the class. The three icons of Elon entertained and enlightened the students with knowledge about Elon’s humble beginnings, the catastrophic fire of 1923, and unprecedented growth. Dr. Francis spoke about the successful completion of the Elon Vision strategic plan, which was responsible for a new student center, science facility, and library. Dr. Lambert gave students a sneak peak into Elon’s future, detailing the next strategic plan, NewCentury@Elon. Elon’s fourth president, William A. Harper once said after the fire of 1923, “Born in poverty, nurtured in sacrifice...Elon faces the future battered but undismayed.” As Elon enters the 21st century, it continues to hold true to Harper’s words, learning and growing as an institution. We learn about our past from great individuals like Danieleley, Francis, and Lambert, in order to make our future brighter.

The heat almost unbearable, Sarah Steudler stopped to take a breath and enjoy the scenery before she finished unpacking the van on Move in Day in August. After gathering her things, she had a long haul to get it in her Virginia residence hall room.

Moving in can be a day of hard work for parents and students. Staff member, Jen McCullough helped Debbie Ray move her daughter into Jordan Center.

Next page: Freshmen students applaud the speakers at the New Student Convocation, an annual event that has become an unforgettable tradition. It is also a time when students receive their acorn, representing the beginning that will eventually mature into a tree at graduation.

Roommates make friends almost immediately when they help each other move in. This was the case for Katie Temple and Leah Baker, who got to know each other better as they put the new lofts together.

Celebration...

Copy by A E Boyd

In the past few years, El Centro de Espanol at Elon has performed wonders in its effort to help diversify the campus atmosphere by offering a center from which individuals can gain more insight in to Spanish cultures, by providing everything from tutoring to fiestas, excursions, and a large variety of other cultural events.

This past fall, the Spanish center at Elon held a 'Latin Festival' of sorts. The day celebrated Spanish culture with a focus more on the local Spanish speaking population; as local merchants, residents, clergy, and performers provided services, held discussions, gave information, and showcased their talents.

Hats off to the celebration, and let's hope it becomes an annual event.

The joys of home... A good meal, decent conversation, family, friends. Virtues one may begin to miss (just a little) as they jump back into the books, and work away on the papers that become an intricate part of a college student's life.

Alas, each year Family Weekend roles around, and family and friends of students flock from all over to visit with their favorite Elon student. This means just a small taste of the world that exists outside of the small dorm room that has become one's temporary home-away-from-home.

But what does one do once all caught-up with news from home, and full from a real meal...?

Well, the Department of Performing Arts offers a showcase- a collage -in which students provide other students, friends, and family with a light evening of song, dance, and acting.

Monuments ...

Copy by A E Boyd

Monuments are designed to commemorate and keep the memory of special events, times, things, people, and places alive over the course of time.

Studying abroad is a major event in anyone's life. Its a time when they experience a new place, new people, a new world in a sense. they learn more about other cultures; and more about their own as well.

Each year, many Elon students have the opportunity to travel, intern, and study abroad. Students are able to study during a semester, during winter term, or even for a year; as far away as Japan and Australia. Other places many Elon students venture include: Guatemala, Costa Rica, Ghana, Spain, Mexico, Ecuador, Europe, and many other destinations.

Our group of world travelers have seen many monuments; experienced many places, and new people. In doing so they have created monuments for themselves, marking the time they spent among the rest of the world; a world which they know more about, and feel more a part of.

The Ladies in Waiting sigh over the Prince because they want him to get married so they could wed. Gathered together in this scene, they sang their drooping emotions. Many late hours were spent in McCrary putting this performance together.

The queen, played by Beth Briley, lectures the prince, king, and kitchen wenches (Kady Eddy and Stephanie Cordell). The king had no respect for the queen and went around chasing the young beautiful women.

Next Page: Chakira Iliana (Lady Larkin) and Charlie Cooper (Sir Harry) are pregnant and singing about the day that they can be together forever. She of course cannot wed until the Prince does.

Winifred, the princess, sings about her likes for the prince and marrying him. It is all a ridiculous thought according to the queen because she swam the mote and noone is suitable for her son. Winifred was played by Kelly Dynan.

The king, Ben Seay, didn't speak but along with his trusty friends the jester, Keith Davis, and minstrel, Jason Coosner, they went into song and dance. There wasn't a straight face in the house when they took stage.

Visitors...

By Rebecca E. Brewer

Her majesty, Queen Noor of Jordan spoke at the Honors Convocation in the fall. Students and faculty gathered in the Alumni Gymnasium of Koury Center to share her visions for the future.

Before her speech, she was presented with an honorary doctorate by President Leo Lambert. She reflected on her experiences and how hard it was for her take over Jordan when her husband, His Majesty the King, passed away. Her struggle has been one to be proud of and women all over the world have benefitted.

Ralph Nader, former presidential candidate and Green Party spokesperson, presented a different way to look at crime to the students in spring semester. He talked about the duopoly of corporate crime and its effects on the United States. Students began with a warm welcome and left with new ideas of the way the political system works and their rights.

Founder of the Black Panthers, Bobby Seale reflected on his achievements toward inner-city development and its demise by the United States government.

Elaine Marshall, North Carolina Secretary of State, spoke with classes about her experiences, her job description, and what students can do to help.

The families attention was suddenly diverted from off stage. This took many practice sessions to get everyone in sync so the distraction appeared to be real. It is the small things as these that the director must pay careful attention.

As the days passed, it was noticed that the students were seen in organized groups. They had formed strategies for completing tasks and had learned of ways to keep up morale. They began calling themselves a team and presenting challenges to each other. This competition, supported by each other, became known as the Sports.

(Left) Although the action may be a blur behind her, Cris Montalvo keeps a steady hand as she mans her camera. Elon's campus media continues to become more prominent on campus and can be found at any number of events during the year. In the picture to the left, it is the Nest, perhaps for a basketball game. Plus, with the mobile production truck, Elon Television can go from Burlington Memorial Stadium to Newsome Field and all points in between.

(Below) Two of the strongest parts of the Elon community, Greek Life and Athletics join up in welcoming fans to the Nest. Riding a wave of popularity, ΠΚΦ continues to be a presence on campus since arriving last year. The Nest, formerly Alumni Gym, became a center of Phoenix pride as Elon continued its rise in Division I.

(Left) As part of the Valentine's Day tradition, tables were set up in Moseley, like this one, "Just Say Hi from AOP," which was used to send friends, boyfriends, and girlfriends a note on this special day.

(Right) Students and Earth Fest 2001 gather to try a nature-themed dessert, a derivative of the "dirt cup." Crumbled cookies and Gummi worms completed the look as students enjoyed the cool dessert as they roamed Earth Fest, taking in all the information and fun activities. (Below) Canoeing on Lake Mary Nell was one of the things for students to do at Earth Fest. Tye-dyeing, musical acts and information and craft booths also awaited those at the festival.

Note from the Editor: I want to thank everyone who put their heart and soul into this book. I really appreciate all the late nights, sweat, and tears, I could not have done it without you. This book is dedicated to you and you deserve everything that comes along with its' success. To everyone else, who anticipates the unveiling, this is for you, Enjoy it! Thanks for the opportunity to lead such a great team and produce such a rewarding yearbook.

during the yearbook workshop in the summer. Stopping at Bubba Gump's Shrimp Co.© and Joe's Be-Bop Cafe© were an important food and entertainment break.

During the workshop, they were taught the importance of teamwork through various games, such as , the moving chair, pictured below. Overall, the trip was very helpful and educational for the success of this book.

Throughout the entire year, events took place to welcome the idea of tradition. These events would allow the diverse student body an opportunity to gather together and learn from the wisdom of the bird. Since it was important that nothing be forgotten, the events were documented in the Mini-Mag.

A Convocation for Honors

By Rebecca E. Brewer and Ashley C. Regan

President's List, Dean's List, and graduating students look on attentively as convocation commences. The ceremony consisted of the academic procession, the invocation, the welcome, the celebration of the Elon Vision, the presentation of the honorary degrees, and the keynote speaker address.

Brothers, Ernest A. Koury Sr. and Maurice J. Koury, were presented with honorary doctorates in appreciation of their continuous support and contribution to the Elon Vision. Convocation also celebrated the culmination of the vision, a seven year process envisioned by a group of trustees, faculty, administrators, and students. The goal of the Elon Vision was to transform a respected regional college into an institution with outstanding academic programs and state-of-the-art facilities.

He was born on June 12, 1924 in Milton, Massachusetts. On his eighteenth birthday, he graduated from Phillips Academy and enlisted in the U.S. Navy, where he became their youngest pilot. He went on to serve in the U.S. House of Representatives as an ambassador to the United Nations and as the Director of the CIA. In 1980, he became vice president in the Reagan administration and served two terms. He was elected president in 1988.

The 41st president of the United States spoke at the annual Spring Convocation for graduating seniors and academic honor students. Alumni Gym and McCrary Theatre were packed full of students, faculty, and honored guests to hear the words of

George W. Bush.

Bush was honored with an honorary doctorate degree. Gail M. Drew, chairwoman of the board of trustees, presented this honor and Dr. Leo Lambert conferred the degree.

Many were expecting a political speech, but instead, Bush passed on words of wisdom and experience for the students and guests alike. With wit and humor, he addressed the school's accomplishments and his wishes for students to leave college with a passion for serving others. He encouraged the students to get involved in the world and take action in causes that they supported. Bush left these words of encouragement, "I hope that every one of you will find the depth and meaning of life that comes from service to others. Lord knows we need more people like you out there...We need a new band of patriots to give meaning to the words honor, duty, and country."

William S. Long

The college's first president, Long served from 1889 through 1894. He received his Bachelor of Arts at Graham College and was ordained as a reverend in 1860 by the North Carolina and Virginia conferences. Long was responsible for providing valuable leadership and guidance through the birth and early years of Elon.

William W. Staley

William Staley, the only nonresident president of the college, served from 1894 through 1905. He was a graduate of Trinity College (later known as Duke University) and spent most of his life as the reverend of the Christian Church. Staley's presidency was long distance because he did not want to leave his quickly growing congregation. As the second president, Staley followed in Long's footsteps by participating in the efforts to help the school grow.

3rd

Emmett L. Moffitt

Before Emmett Moffitt became president of Elon in 1905, he served as one of the original faculty members of the college. He received both his Bachelor of Arts degree and Masters degree at Trinity College (later Duke University) in 1889 and 1890 respectively. Moffitt served as president until 1911 and then remained a trustee of the school until his death.

4th

William A. Harper

William Allen Harper was the first alumnus to become president of the college. He graduated in 1889 and received his Master of Arts at Yale University in 1904. Harper began teaching until he was offered the presidency of the college. President from 1911-1931, Harper successfully began to rebuild Elon after the devastating fire of 1923.

5th

Leon T Smith

Proving incredible leadership through hard times, Leon Smith served as president from 1931 until 1957. Smith successfully carried the college through the Great Depression, debt, and small class enrollment. Not only did Smith bring the college out of debt, but he also raised extra funds and facilitated the construction of five buildings on campus. At the time that Smith took over the presidency, the enrollment of was 86 and in 1957 at the closure of his presidency, 1,634 students were attending Elon.

7th

J. Fred Young

President from 1973 through 1998, Fred Young is responsible for creating the Elon Vision which has brought great change to campus. Many new buildings, including Model and McMichael Science, have been erected under this vision. A Wake Forest graduate with a Bachelor of Science degree, Young also received degrees from UNC-Chapel Hill and Columbia University.

6th

J. Earl Danieleley

One of the youngest college presidents Elon has ever had, James Earl Danieleley became president in 1957 at the age of 32. He was a graduate of the college and participated in many activities while a student, including a year as the associate editor of the yearbook. Danieleley was a chemistry professor both before his presidency and after he resigned in 1973.

8th

Leo M. Lambert

Leo Lambert assumed the presidency in 1999. As Elon's current president, he has completed the Vision and is now pursuing the New Century @ Elon. As Elon became a university on June 1, 2001, Lambert seeks to help it to grow into a nationally recognized institution and to create an even stronger learning environment for the students.

The ancient bird was so proud of his students that he thought they deserved some special words of recognition. He also wanted to show his appreciation for those around the school. With so many people to thank and others who would be missed, paper was scorched with fire for all to see. This gesture would be used to enhance the relationship between the students, families, and Business.

The rain plan was cancelled as the sun began to shine over the beautiful campus as folks headed to Fonville Fountain for breakfast at 7:45 a.m. on May 19. Commencement would begin an hour earlier this year at 9:30 a.m.

The 756 undergraduate and 100 graduate students began filing into Jordan Gym as the room turned into maroon and black. Before long, President Leo Lambert appeared with a few congratulatory remarks followed by guest speaker Mike Jensen, former chief financial correspondent of NBC News, who assured the graduates that his speech wouldn't last more than 12 minutes as advised by his children.

Finally, the processional began as everyone headed toward the oaks in front of West Residence Hall. Aimee Pickett, president of the senior class, set the tone with an appreciation message for the graduates, and Jensen urged the students to "look for what you're good at and what you love to do, then find where those intersections meet." Lambert concluded commencement as he reminded each graduate to take a part of Elon with them....the beginning of an oak tree.

From the ashes arose Alamance Building.
